ABOUT THE BOOK

All is quiet in the forest as the Great Star rises in the distance. Two little musicians, Strum and Drum, wake up from a deep slumber and set out to make the most joyous music they can! But as Strum strums his guitar and Drum drums her drum on their way to the North, some mysterious obstacles fill their paths . . . flickering lanterns, bubbles of glass, a silver waterfall, a tiny house, dangerous animals . . . and a wooden man with a toothy grin warns them of a beast with green eyes lying in wait. For this is no ordinary forest — it's a Christmas tree, on Christmas Eve, and Strum, Drum and all their new friends are ornaments! But when the green-eyed beast strikes and sends them tumbling out of the “forest,” Strum and Drum’s quest to reach the Great Star seems doomed . . . until a little boy setting out milk and cookies for Santa spots them.

KEEP THE CONVERSATION GOING

Here are some ideas, activities and questions to consider after you’ve read the book:

- Strum and Drum play a guitar and drum. Using household items, try making your own musical instrument.
- When the two musicians get hungry, they feast on sweets. What are your favorite snacks? Do you eat anything special during the winter holidays?
- Imagine some of your toys come to life and go on an adventure! What would they do, and where would they go?
