ABOUT THE BOOK

Liddy is so excited about going to the Dim Sum Palace tomorrow with her family that she can't sleep. So when a delicious smell wafts into her room, she hops out of bed, opens her door and steps into . . . an actual palace of dim sum! There are dumplings, baos, buns and more delicious treats than one girl can possibly eat. Liddy just has to take a bite, but she slips and falls . . . into a bowl of dumpling filling. The chefs are so busy rolling, folding and pinching dough that they don't notice they've prepared a most unusual dumpling for the Empress — a Liddy dumpling! Worst of all, she looks good enough to eat . . .

This deliciously humorous debut picture book, inspired by X. Fang's childhood memories of epic dim sum feasts, is a dreamworld adventure that is at once a glorious celebration of the sensory world of childhood and a loving helping of food, family and culture.

KEEP THE CONVERSATION GOING

Here are some ideas, activities and questions to consider after you've read the book:

- In the story, Libby was turned into a dumpling. Using a writing utensil and paper, draw yourself as your favorite food. Look at the X. Fang's author biography on the book's jacket for inspiration too!
- Come up with a restaurant name and create dishes for an imaginary menu. Look at the book's case jacket for inspiration!
- Keep a journal of all the dreams you had while sleeping for a week. Was there a common theme? Did anything surprise you?
